

Give Me Strength

Dido

Sitting in the rain alone
Looking at a place that's gone
Boarding up my memories but something's drawn me here again
And I cannot leave the past alone

I hope that I would never find all the shit I left behind
Now I find the child in me is going to remind me
That I can't forget my past for long

So take a look outside yourself and tell me what you see
I can't believe that you won't see the change in me

Give me strength to fight the road that's lost in me
Give me time to heal and build myself a dream
And give me eyes to see the world surrounding me
And give me strength to be only me

I don't wanna hear the things you say
You know all you've redeemed
'Cause I can't change what's come before
I built myself some better dreams and cast off the fear that's held me here

So take a look outside yourself and tell me what you see
I can't believe that you won't see the change in me

Give me strength to fight the road that's lost in me
Give me time to heal and build myself a dream
And give me eyes to see the world surrounding me
And give me strength to be only me
