

I Can't See Anything (But You)

Dionne Warwick

I should thank you for the flowers
Can't imagine how you came to think of those
That same colour rose, for me
My world is made up of memories
You and I, the laughter and tears
You never need to worry

I can't see anything
See anything but you
There could be so many others
But I can't see anything
See anything but you

I remember all the good things
When you held me for the first time
Things were right
On that rainy night, for us
Love, then, now and forever
No time real and right where we are
As good as my eyes can be

I can't see anything
See anything but you

There could be some many others
But I can't see anything
See anything but you

No one ever cried
No one ever stood in the way
Ev'rybody lies
Ev'rybody buys what love is today
You can be a fool
In the beginnin, baby you were there
And when you're winning
What do you do
Don't ask me

I can't see anything
See anything but you
There could be so many others
But I can't see anything
See anything but you
There could be so many others but...

I can't see anything
See anything but you
There could be so many others
But I can't see anything
See anything but you
There could be so many others but...
