

But in the Headlights

Dirty Projectors

But in the headlights of those all heading home
All turned on as night came:

And flowing as a stream of bonding, unbonding molecules
Their light came

A highway arcs across my hill
Come out as dusk came down on it
The day hid it in soft dead leaves