So Long Utah

Divided By Friday

If you're leaving, please leave for good
There's no need to cry because I understood
Every word that you spoke to me Is this how it's got to be?
I'm fine
But the fact remains
And so do all the scars and stains from you
I can lie
If I could turn it around I swear I would I'd change everything that I knew I could
Yeah, I'd tear this down for you
Because you were right and I was wrong
I was scared and took too long
To say what I knew I should

There's no need to point fingers
I admit that I'm the problem
I admit that I'm the one to blame
And I'm trying so hard,
To just maintain some sense of sanity
While driving myself insane
Time it moves so fast
And I'm living in the past
I'm living in the memories we made
If I could go back, that's what I'd do
Back to the photographs of me and you
Please tell me where we went wrong

There's no need to point fingers
I admit that I'm the problem
I admit that I'm the one to blame
And I'm trying so hard,
To just maintain some sense of sanity
While driving myself insane