

Patriotic Pride

Dogwood

And the rockets red glare,
will be nothing compared to the light that will shine on the day.
Millions of souls will be stolen,
For all the right reasons and you'll hear all the old people say.

Look what I said would happen came true.
That's the difference between me and you.
To God I stayed true,
You let the world conquer you.
And you said that we... we are all the...

Seven years of hell, my friend I wish you well.
In a trial which you'll have to survive.

And in the end, it will happen again,
So this time I suggest that you don't run and hide.

Look up into, the pitch black sky,
I look down upon you with new eyes.

Don't hold back your choice, take a stand,
Speak your voice.

The world's but a thorn in your side.

Look what I said would happen came true.
That's the difference between me and you.
To God I stayed true, you let the world conquer you.
And you said that we... we are all the same.
