

Heading Home

Donavon Frankenreiter

You try sell something that just can't be brought
You said it's the latest and the greatest but I know that its not Be somebody you don't want to be
Didn't even exist last year but now its what we need

Oh no not me, oh no not me
Because I'm heading home, I'm heading home

You try to tell dad something that you've never been told
I guess it won't be agreed around here when they're born
Once it's really gone, then it's really gone for good
Just because you can doesn't mean that you should

Oh no not here, oh no not now
Because I'm heading home, I'm heading home

Go somewhere you've never gone
Sing something that you've never sang
Think about something that you've never thought
And if you're going to give him everything you've got

Because I'm heading home, I'm heading home
I'm heading home, I'm heading home

Because we're heading home, we're heading home
We're heading home, we're heading home
