

Voices Cryin' Out

Donna Summer

Voices cryin' out, voices cryin' out voices cryin' out in the night hear them call voices cryin' out hear them call

It's a night
like no other night
it's a day
almost turning gray
it's a heart
like a broken heart
it's a wheel
at the end of day
it's the plight
of a boy who's scared of the waves rushing out and the wind in the air it's the sight of one longing to taste of life

Voices crying out in the night hear them call voices from some foreign shore visions that seem an incredible dream echoing for more
voices crying out hear them call

It's a song of a love unsung
it's the pain
of just being young
it's a cry
of a voice unheard of a face
speaking silent words
it's the hope that the time goes by take you upon a wing
teach your soul to fly
it's a wish that you'll live your experience life

vision that seem an incredible dream

Oh do you know how it feels to be free walking your path of life embracing destiny one day at a time

Voices cryin' out...oh can't you hear them voices cryin' out...listen please, listen to the future voices cryin' out...millions and millions and millions of voices voices cryin' out...oh oh oh oh

voices cryin' out...
