

What A Woman Really Means

Donny Hathaway

When I wake up in the morning
After each night that we meet
There's no room for breakfast
And the hunger is for repeat

The times we spend together
Are so few and far between
It tends to make a man forget
What a woman really means

In the early afternoon
I relax and take a break
That's when my mind is on you
Far away from the hard days of work

Trying hard to make a living
So I won't get caught between
I really get the feeling of
What a woman really means

(Yeah, yeah, yeah) Don't you forget
What a woman really means

In the twilight of the evening
When the sun is going down
My love for you grows stronger
It's so good when you're around

You have so much love to offer
And the moments in between
Yes have made me realize
What a woman really means

(Yeah, yeah, yeah) Don't you forget
What a woman really means

Squeezin', touchin', lovin'
I don't want you to forget
No no, no no, no no