

Darkness of My Night

Donovan

The long, long breezes are blowing down the sky
From my window to the street I cast my weary eye
Everything is quite in the lonesome dusky light
I'm feeling so alone in the darkness of my night

Oh, I remember days when the sun was warm with love
Softening as the day grew old in dazzling streaks of golds
Now my days are bleak and the sunset's a cruel sight
Oh, I'm feeling so alone in the darkness of my night

Oh, I feel I want to ramble to the shores of the mighty sea
Pounding in my ears, the wind so wild and free
To stumble in the high grass and the sand a-glowing white
My eyes they fill, they break and spill the darkness of my night

My sorrow is confusing, my love will never know
My empty hands they lie down by my side so low
I walk this sleeping town and the highway a-glittering bright
Oh, I'm feeling so alone in the darkness of my night
