Endless Sacrifice

Dream Theater

Cold Lying in my bed Staring into darkness Lost I hear footsteps overhead And my thoughts return Again Like a child who's run away And won't be coming back Time keeps passing by As night turns into day I'm so far away And so alone I need to see your face To keep me sane To make we whole Try to stay alive Until I hear your voice I'm gonna lose my mind Someone tell me why I chose this life This superficial le Constant compromise Endless sacrifice Pain It saddens me to know The helplessness you feel Your light Shines on my soul While a thousand candles Burn Outside this barren room The rain is pouring down The emptiness inside Is growing deeper still You're so far away And so alone You long for love's embrace To keep you sane To make you whole Try to stay alive Until I hear your voice I'm gonna lose my mind Someone tell me why I chose this life This superficial lie Constant compromise

Endless sacrifice

Moments wasted Isolated Time escaping Endless sacrifice

Moments wasted Isolated Time escaping Endless sacrifice

Over the distance We try to make sense Of surviving together While living apart

Striving for balance We rise to the challenge Of staying connected In spite of circumstance

All you've forsaken And all that you've done So that I could live out This undying dream

Won't be forgotten Or taken for granted I'll always remember Your endless sacrifice

Moments wasted Isolated Time escaping Endless sacrifice

Moments wasted Isolated Time escaping Endless sacrifice