

It Wasn't Over, It Still Isn't Over

Dropout Year

So tonight,
We will reunite,
Under the eyes of this summer sky,
To find,
What we left behind,
With years gone by,
There's still questions why.

And tonight,
We will reignite,
The sparks that flew,
But burnt out and died,
Then justified us to say goodbye,
But not tonight,
Not this time.

So much left unsaid,
We just left instead of fixing things,
We settled for being just friends,
I don't want to,
Cause no one knows me better than you do.

If I try to hold your hand,
Would you hold the past against me,
We don't have much time to waste,
For old times sake I say,
That we both dance the night away.

Why are we keeping our chemistry a secret,
From ourselves,
While everyone else can see that there's a reason,
That you and I keep meeting like we do,
Out of the blue.

So much left unsaid,
We just left instead of fixing things,
We settled for being just friends,
I don't want to,
Cause no one knows me better than you do.

If I try to hold your hand,
Would you hold the past against me,
We don't have much time to waste,
For old times sake I say,
That we both dance the night away.

So tonight,
We will reunite,
Under the eyes of this summer sky.

If I try to hold your hand,
Would you hold the past against me,
We don't have much time to waste,
For old times sake I say,
We both dance the night away,
I've been waiting for this day.
