

The Last Surrender

Dwight Yoakam

To the Lord's defenders at the last surrender
Granted passage to the other side
Where he shall cherish in his name those who've perished
And embrace with everlasting life

To each heart that is tendered at the last surrender
A home is promised with him to abide
Where he shall cherish in his name those who've perished
And embrace with everlasting life

There be redeemed to dwell in fear no more
Free the bondage of this lost world's strife
Knowing he shall cherish in his name those who've perished
And embrace with everlasting life

And there be redeemed to dwell in fear no more
Free the bondage of this lost world's strife
Knowing he shall cherish in his name those who've perished
And embrace with everlasting life

To the Lord's defenders at the last surrender
Granted passage to the other side
Where he shall cherish in his name those who've perished
And embrace with everlasting life