

Strangers

Ed Harcourt

Deliciously
I drink up all your tears
On a piano out of tune
I sit and persevere

Deliriously
I eat up all your words
And jumble them around
Till they become absurd

Remember how it was
They said it wouldn't last
You proved them wrong
Took on everyone

Ferociously
We fumble in the dark
Two lovers acting like strangers
Society won't cage us

Oh, remember how it was
They said it wouldn't work
You proved them wrong
Took on everyone

Like a clock that can't keep time
But bad thoughts to hide
Or a poem that can't ever rhyme
Now strangers sing, this song for her

Oh, remember how it was
They said it wouldn't last
You proved them wrong
Took on everyone

Remember how it was
Remember how it was