

What Will I Write

Eddie Rabbitt

What will I write
On this piece of paper?
How can I tell her
I don't love her anymore?
What can I say
To break it to her gently?
Words, they don't come easy
To my mind like before

Where are the words
That once felt like honey from my lips
When I was so eager for your kiss
And we were falling in love
Where are they now
Now that I need the very best
Not that they'll hurt her any less

But what will I write
To tell her that's it's over
And that it's not another
That's taken me away
What can I say
To break it to her gently?
They just don't come easy
When there's nothing left to say

Where are the words
That once felt like honey from my lips
When I was so eager for your kiss
And we were falling in love
Where are they now
Now that I need the very best
Not that they'll hurt her any less

What will I write
On this piece of paper?