The Whisper of the Ages

Edenbridge

twilight has fallen so deep like a hurricane's eye the empire's predictions came falling from the sky the voices keep calling they're speaking of fate to be sealed the riddles and rhymes of existence keep concealed the shrine to behold and not their hearts unfold for a lifetime faithfully following leaders they adore and in their sleep their last dreams fade away the whisper of the ages coming by to stay to dream those dreams away gone by forevermore into the never they are leaving whispers lead astray to dream those dreams away the symbols of power are melting the ice we are in the elegies written in candlelight begin the dices are rolling into a direction unknown the gods they are fearing have come to take the throne the phoenix will rise tearing off his disguise he is flying into the sun of a million dreams away

(2x): and in their sleep their last dreams fade away the whisper of the ages coming by to stay to dream those dreams away gone by forevermore into the never they are leaving whispers lead astray to dream those dreams away