

Looking To Look For

Eleni Mandell

I saw your face last night,
It didn't mean that much,
But still I have to wonder
Where did all these feelings grow.

It was so hard to part,
But then you turn around
And fell in love with someone else,
I didn't think you'd let me go.

I'm looking to look for.

You really look the same,
And when you came to say hello
You put your arm around me
Just the way you used to do.

Bones beneath your shirt,
Your pants an inch too short.
You smile, that boy, you smile
I always loved the mug above your upper lip.

I'm looking to look for,
I'm looking to look for.

It's so easy to forget
Sometimes it's like we never met.

And when you turned away
You said you'd see me later,
Watch you walk into the cloud,
That was when all the lights went down.

Like a life, went through a looking glass
You opened up your mouth
To see a different man,
All these years came rushing by.

I'm looking to look for,
I'm looking to look for.

It's strange how close we used to be
This life can be so bittersweet.

I know we're better off,
I watched you smoke your cigarette
And there's a girl stage left,
She's waiting for you in the dark.

When we say goodbye
I wanna laugh the laughs we used to laugh
Instead, we make a plan for a coffee
That we'll never have.

I'm looking to look for,
I'm looking to look for,
I'm looking to look for
