

Someone To Love

Elisa

You call me your friend, so you give me a name I feel much stronger now that I have found a place to be it is nothing you see...
It's nothing new but everything could change

You call me your friend, then you show me a way to lose my fear so I could take a chance and walk on through where I can barely stand thought I would break but I feel I could bend

When you finally open the door to let everything in you'll find out you're not alone
and that you are someone to love

You call me your friend, you decide I can stay to learn your faults and love you anyway to see your world and all your secret fears reveal your beauty waiting to be seen or just to know what you mean...

When you finally open the door
to let everything in
you'll find out you're not alone
and that you are someone to love
When you finally open the door
to let everything in
you'll find out you're not alone
and that you are someone to love

And you don't ever have to stop dreaming
And you don't ever have to stop dreaming
...someone to love
When you finally open the door
to let everything in
you'll find out you're not alone
and that you are someone to love