

Breathe this air from your lungs
this doesn't have the be the end where do we go from here
where do we go from here
as the world begins to crumble crumble away in front of our eyes
In this place that we find ourselves there is no way to be sure of anything
as the world begins to crumble
crumble away in front of our eyes

In this place that we find ourselves
there is no way to be sure of anything between you and I there is nothing, nothing

In this place that we find ourselves we're drifting away from the truth that we find when we search inside (if you can feel me if you know i'm right here beside you breathe in and don't let go) we were once connected connected from worlds apart we were once symmetric my inverse counterpart between you and I

there is something that is missing I can feel my grasp slipping away there is nothing

Breathe this air from your lungs
this doesn't have the be the end
where do we go from here
where do we go from here
as the world begins to crumble
crumble away in front of our eyes