

Lay Down

Ella Henderson

Won't you lay down
And tell me the places you've been
Won't you lay down
And relive your story again
If things could turn back around
I know I would do anything
Won't you lay down
'Cause I know that heaven's waiting

Won't you stay now
There's so much that's never been said
Won't you stay now
Remind me to never forget
And I, I won't break down
I don't want to live with regret
Won't you stay now
I'll be by your side 'til the end

And you've been to places I've never been Built your walls so high but you'd always let me in
You showed me that love can build a home
But now I see that it's time to let you go

Won't you lay down
And tell me the places you've been
Won't you lay down
And relive your story again
If things could turn back around
I know I would do anything
Won't you lay down
'Cause I know that heaven's waiting

No, no
If things could turn back around
I know I would do anything
Won't you lay down
'Cause I know that heaven's waiting