

Shadow And Light

Eloy

you take fate like a machine unable to react and with the heart of stainless steel you only count the facts you fought your soul with all your might do you believe this could be a glorious fight cynically you talk to me now wish to be seen that way you alone challenging life jumping the waves of a day

you fought your soul with all your might but do you believe this could be a glorious fight shadow and light are same the shades inbetween a game you get drunk on stary skies and inhale the coolness there's this deepness of sentiment running through you the world flowing in streams as the most precious dream warm and mild and now crystalline clear you can face life without fear you're a romantic but scared of yourself always suspecting attack afraid to be caught vulnerable

unable to react
you fought your soul with all your might
but do you believe this can be a glorious fight