They Remind Me Too Much of You

Elvis Presley

Take away, the scent of flowers Cover up, the sky of blue Close my ears to tender love songs They remind me too much of you

Hide young lovers warm embraces Keep stars and moonlight from my view Let me forget, there are such places They remind me too much of you

Must I evermore be haunted? Day after day, my whole life through By the memory of each moment That I spent alone with you

If these lovely things dont hurt you Our love just wasnt meant to be But please come back to me, my darling If they remind you, too much of me
