

One By One

Emerson, Lake & Palmer

Watch as the demons dance, they move like a spider
Look in the devil's eyes as he goes for the kill
In the valley of truth the shadow is just getting wider
While the fingers are freezing the potion is starting to chill.

Still we all walk on, one by one.

A spectre is screaming, there's fire in the heat of the city
The neon is burning, the walls are starting to crack
Even under the ground the subway is littered with pity
Just look over your shoulder, you'll notice a knife in your back.

Still we all walk on, one by one.

Out of this cocoon, reachin' for the moon, we pray
Though our dreams are made of sand, there's fate in every hand
we play
We're searchin' for the flame, where in Heaven's name will light be found again.

So when will the falcon rise, I'm starting to wonder
His talons are sharp as a dagger, he's looking for blood
'Til we carry the word of light, we'll be hidden by thunder
'Til we open the door of our being we'll drown in the flood.

Still we all walk on, one by one.

Out of this cocoon, reachin' for the moon, we pray
Though our dreams are made of sand, there's fate in every hand
we play
We're searchin' for the flame, where in Heaven's name will light be found again.

Out of this cocoon, reachin' for the moon, we pray
Though our dreams are made of sand, there's fate in every hand
we play
We're searchin' for the flame, where in Heaven's name will light be found
We're searchin' for the flame, where in Heaven's name will light be found again.