

In Loving Memory

Emily's Army

Sometimes I get so lost for words from everything going on Somebody help me take me out of this world
And then I saw her she was walking down my street
She said come on now baby
And then we shared our stories

Every single day from that point on she was in my head
This wonderful creature that shared more than just her presence
She was everything I ever wanted
What if things just ended how it started
And then the day would come but she would leave me forever
I'd be nothing but alone again and without her
In loving memory

And then the day came when we took our different paths
It was the death of the perfect time in my life
She was everything I ever wanted
Everything just ended how it started

These days I forget what it feels like to be around
The perfect girl in her perfect world
We walked and we talked and she calmed down my crazy mind
Now i'm nothing but alone again and without her
In loving memory
