Hayley, it doesn't even matter now
We could have truly had it all

Hayley, it doesn't even matter now
We could have truly had it all

They took him to the hills, where they made him a star
Everyone loved who they knew from afar
They fated a deceiver, who wed a believer
With her fed, she conceived his little girl who oppressed called in danger;
Torched his eyes with her anger
All the flashes captured daddy's dismay and she took her life before she could run away

Hayley, it doesn't even matter now
We could have truly had it all

I went there, to the site they had said she would be Too cold a world for a girl, seventeen
I couldn't complete it, they wouldn't foresee it Love is now where her life couldn't be Oh believe it can happen
Death is time's true companion
And the future takes a second to be Close your eyes and feel what is happening

Hayley, it doesn't even matter now
We could have truly had it all
We could have truly had it all

I said
Hayley, it doesn't even matter now
We could have truly had it all
We could have truly had it all

Hayley, the dark world took you under,
What ever made you wonder?
What ever made you wonder?

Hayley, the dark world took you under,
What ever made you wonder?
What ever made you wonder?
