

Stranger

Endless Blue

I'm fading, so cold out
No coat on, don't notice the rain
It's the right time, you were with me
How come I can only feel pain?

Know I felt it, for a moment
Sun was shining, burning too bright
Sky abandoned, no real reason
Down on my knees I succumb to the night

But the stranger in the mirror
I don't know her, I fear her
I cry for her every night
When I see her with you

Broken shards of glass in my fingers
Bleed in protest, in sadness
I suffer not knowing the way
To hate her, and I do

On the outside sounds of laughter
Tears are falling yet nobody sees
Broken sunset, masked in grey fog
Vindictive winds swallow my pleas

I'm alone now, light my candles
In the bathtub I sit holding my knees
Now I'm sorry in this moment
Destined to face life's misery

But the stranger in the mirror
I don't know her, I fear her
I cry for her every night
When I see her with you

Broken shards of glass in my fingers
Bleed in protest, in sadness
I suffer not knowing the way
To hate her, and I do

I'm fading, so cold out
No coat on, don't notice the rain
It's the right time, you were with me
How come I can only feel pain?

But the stranger in the mirror
I don't know her, I fear her
I cry for her every night
When I see her with you

Broken shards of glass in my fingers
Bleed in protest, in sadness
I suffer not knowing the way
To hate her, and I do

I'm fading, so cold out
Don't notice the rain

Pleading, bleeding
How come I can only feel pain?
