

Time

Eowyn

In ways I can't explain you helped me find myself.
You always knew that there was so much more that I could give.
But I just always thought that I was at the top of my game,
While I was crushed beneath the plays of my own mind games

You took the time to know me.
You took the time to care.
When all the world was waged against me
You took the time to show me that you loved me.

With loss of consciousness my world enlightened dims.
What was lost is found and I am here aware again.
That everything I am was and ever thought to become Simply parallels all the plans you planned for me cause

Here I wait for You!
Take my faith, while You tear away the shackles that have bound me
