

Moments pass (pass, pass, pass)
Like a myriad of hours lost to time
A never ending glance, solemn in your eyes
Filled with doubt (doubt, doubt, doubt)
The lies we harbor, screaming to get out
Your disdain, it never left your mouth

You carved unspoken words in stone
You stripped the skin and scraped the bone
You stain me with indifference
When I'm calling out your name...
You built a tomb of blood and stone
Through fields that bloom in autumn's cold
I never thought I'd be the one
To live my life in silence...

And I fall (fall, fall, fall)
Drifting through the shades of sympathy
But I'll never let it show or let it lead me down
And I feel (feel, feel, feel)
Life it bleeds me like an open wound
But I'll never let it flow, these rivers of desolation

You carved unspoken words in stone
You stripped the skin and scraped the bone
You stain me with indifference
When I'm calling out your name...
You built a tomb of blood and stone
Through fields that bloom in autumn's cold
I never thought I'd be the one
To live my life in silence...