

Floating

Eucharist

October sun
Falling calmly down the horizon
Everything looks cold
And the natural beauty surrounds this solemn province
But in my eyes
this blasphemous grace is falling apart

So the mist that I once could hide in am I now becoming part of

I dissappear
Hide amidst the empty clouds
And in darkness I will remain obscure Distant from this world of wickedness
Floating my way through infinity

I am flying paralyzed through the depths and I wonder if I ever shall find peace again

My tears are falling from the wasted generations
Creating rivers
Overflowed with carnal suffering
But from my view
I discover their deserted souls dissolving on their way to deliverance

Floating my way through infinity