Children of This Time

She spend one evening alone she's on fire Thinkin' of you in a dream You come home and she says you're a liar Asking "Where have you been"

But she's the angel of your heart There's not a thing that could set you apart If nothing comes by 'till the end If nothing goes wrong She will always be your friend

You're a fool when you think that she's someone Who would believe in a lie You're a fool when you don't think she's someone Whom you can make cry

Cause you're the hero of her heart There's not a thing that could set you apart If nothing comes by 'till the end If nothing goes wrong You will always be her friend

You are the children of this time You are the bread and the wine You are companions 'till the end You've got yourselves to defend

Give her more so much more and you'll find out That it will come in return Tell her more so much more about your feelings And she will make them burn

Cause you're the children of today There's not a thing that could stand in your way If nothing goes wrong You will always be friends
