Every Time I Die

Peel off the leather and dig out your heart, peel off the leath er and dig out your heart, Peel off the leather and dig out your heart, peel off the leath er and dig out your heart,

Right before your very eyes I slipped off the husk I mastered the sleight There's a getaway car That's been waiting my whole life The engine has been running since the moment I arrived

A trap door in the gallows let the charlatan out Smoke and mirrors box him in The rags and the bones were such a burden That I though I'd collapse and only when I surrendered them Did I find I had what it takes to burn myself at the stake

Did you smell a rat, did you smell a rat Did you smell a rat, did you smell a rat

I had faked everything but my death Across of the plane onto the shore The strain on my back wasn't there anymore

Wisdom teeth have replaced the fangs, wisdom teeth have replace d the fangs $% \left({{{\left({{{\left({{{\left({{{c}} \right)}} \right.} \right.} \right)}_{\rm{c}}}}} \right)$

I've been scalped, scalped, scalped I've been knocked conscious and I still haven't come around There was so much trouble on my mind, all the time Call on the ten thieves and tell them I'm ready

I looked up and the desert was everywhere But insight comes through blackened eyes I climbed a hill to dig a hole in the ground Where I could bury the faithlessness and the evidence that I wa s ever actually right My skin was on too tight

I could not identify the body Us snakes evolve It's what snakes do

I could not identify the body Shed the fur and leave the womb Peel off the leather and dig out your heart, peel off the leath er and dig out your heart Peel off the leather and dig out your heart, peel off the leath er and dig out your heart
