Everything But the Girl

London, summer 92 I think I've changed a lot since then, do you

Ideas that I'd held for years, emotional baggage, hopes and fea rs

Seen somehow in a different light, not as wrong, but not as rig ht as they Seemed before was I different then? Have I changed?

And will I change again?

I'm thinking of a mental freefall, a partial total memory recall like what of The future, what of the past, what of the present will last?

And say I did forget and revert to the old days, forget this hu rt

Am I better off or in reverse, untaught by experience and there fore worse?

I mean a lot, I mean a little

I mean a lot, I mean a little

I'm like a coastline, a beach and spit Spurn Point and the rest of it

With the sea, the tide, the salt and foam, I'm the blasted land
The sand shifting, drifting out and back, then breached, drowne d

Defenses down, rebuilt from this day on or maybe not

Maybe my moment's gone

I mean a lot, I mean a little

I mean a lot, I mean a little

Am I the same person I seemed to be? Does all of this depress m e?

I won't listen, I won't talk a weightless life, I moonwalk

I mean a lot, I mean a little I'm supple, brittle, pig in the m iddle

There's resilience inside my face, but sometimes nothing deep s pace

What I feel what I fear is always here my atmosphere

Pig in the middle

I mean a lot, I mean a little

I mean a lot, I mean a little
