

In The Blink Of An Eye

Fact

I never meant to turn you off in any way
There was no way I could stop and take you with me
This landslide's reflected in my eyes
An hourglass ticking down the time is broken into pieces
Right before the 941485 exit

Raise our hands to open skies and cast shadows all over the lonely road ahead Interrupted only halfway through the 600th mile of your plans you've created
You were trying to say something?
I only wish I knew the true reason
You can never change our history
You've rolled the bad dice of life

We've rolled the dice
But we've survived
No going back
The final act

We can never roll the losing dice again
And we hope we will not have to feel the pain
We can come back to here again