Silence the cry, stepping back further Escape from the mind, my mind Twisting inside, looking for shelter Find the divide in me

Oh my God, what have I done?
One step now the damage is done

It's silent without you
It burns through each and every day
It takes my breath away
So lonely without you
This love you've grown just fades to gray
It takes my breath away

I was so blind, I should've seen it Notice the life, my life I had to climb, stepping up further To find the divide in me

Oh my God, what have I done?
One step now the damage is done

It's silent without you
It burns through each and every day
It takes my breath away
So lonely without you
This love you've grown just fades to gray
It takes my breath away

They ask too much of us With them you always knew Just wanna live our lives You know we're trying to

We put more faith in you Our courage and our strength You find you'll raise the dead Until the sorry end

It takes my breath away
It's silent without you
It burns through each and every day
It takes my breath away
It takes my breath away