Feeling Left Out

You're running free at record speed My legs are crushed and my arms they bleed Inside of me turns like a washing a machine While outside I form a smoke screen

What happened to that girl I knew? You look like her, but this can't be you You're traveling to the Upper East Side Make sure you enjoy the skyline

The rain comes down and hits my window Proves to be The rain is knocking at my window Source of company

What if I Died?
Would it make any difference now
I know I'll feel better in the morning
But this is how I feel right now
If you need anything just call
The understatement of the year
Waving to an empty window
Once filled by your shadow

Disappear before my eyes
Before my eyes have time to cry
Help myself to a plate of dissatisfaction

Rain comes down and hits my window Proves to be Rain is knocking at my window Source of company

What if I Died?
Would it make any difference now
I know I'll feel better in the morning
But this is how I feel right now

Rain comes down and hits my window Proves to be Rain is knocking at my window Source of company

What if I Died?
Would it make any difference now
I know I'll feel better in the morning
But this is how I feel right now (2x)
