

I said where you going with that halo stuck around your golden head you said what's the point in talking everything has already been said

I don't know why you said seasons change I hope I never will you said why you carrying that mirror always looking at yourself

I said while you're up there can you get me that old book down from the shelf
I don't know why
you said what's the point in talking to yourself all the time