

And two hearts that beat like only one
And both are lights collided and they caused a new one Settled in the tempo of something that cannot shine alone
Your heart now beats for two and tempos of shit that we've gone through
Your heart now beats for two

And I swear you won't to this alone
You'll always be my lion and I'll write you in new poem Settled in the tempo of something I can't recite alone
Your eyes now see for two as windows of shit that we've gone th rough
Your heart now beats for two

And she's something I just wanna hold
I don't want her to find out that my arms have been so cold Settled in the tempo of something when young I often wrote Your heart now sings for two, through all of the ones that I've showed you
Your heart now beats for two

And I'll be there when we're growing old And she's off to find out all the things she was not told Settled in the tempo of something I would have died to know It's now just me and you and memories of shit that we've gone t hrough
Your heart now beats, your heart now beats, my heart now beats for you