

The Marching Sane

Flowing Tears

the autumn in your eyes the salty dark within your veins we walk the streets at night a searing spark inside our cage your light it burns so painful turn around and burn me painful

no light can release my pain
not a young god
I spit in the eyes of the marching sane and in the young ones and the world will turn in vein the autumn in your smile don't dare to walk another way and when there's no behind... don't look back! we praise the dawning day

your light it burns so painful
turn around and burn me painful

no light can release my pain...

no light can release my pain
not a young god
a tiptoeing knife in the back they reign all the young ones

no light can release my pain...