When It Comes to Love

Foreigner

I remember the day seems so far away When I walked into your life And the look in your eyes, how it took you by surprise But it felt so right

Then I drew you in, told you anything 'Cause I wanted you so bad Girl, I led you on, said, "There's nothing wrong In giving your heart to me"

But when it comes to love, I should know better When it comes to love I take the blame 'Cause you are the one I should've held on to Yeah, it coulda been you

I never realized how time was on my side Lost sight of my perfect world And the man that I've become from the damage that I've done It's so clear to me now

But I wished that I never was the kind To steal a lonely heart And I didn't see how good you were for me Now it's too late to go back

'Cause when it comes to love, I should know better When it comes to love, I take the blame 'Cause you are the one I should've held on to

When it comes to love, girl, I can't help it When it comes to love, I always lose my way And you are the one I should've held on to Ah, it coulda been you

Making a change in my heart Finding a new place to start Wondering what I can do Will I ever get over you? No

When it comes to love, I should know better When it comes to love, I take the blame 'Cause you are the one I should've held on to

When it comes to love, girl, I can't help it When it comes to love, I always lose my way And you are the one I should've held on to Ah, it could've been you
