I never knew who I was until I was standing on the edge I never felt so empty and alone, my memories my only friend Dreams about the past and what is meant to be Silent as the sun goes down, I pray the night will set me free

My time's born at sunrise
My shadows become shade
I will shine forever
Even though the dark comes to take me away

My pulse pounding blood enraged What is this I have done? The finish line within my grasp I'm not the only one

Seconds, minutes, hours turn to days So much time I let slip away Silence as the sun goes down And pray it comes back up again

My time's born at sunrise
My shadows become shade
I will shine forever
Even though the dark comes to take me away

Love can be your enemy
Or an angel from above
A blackened beast that you can't see
Or a soaring snow white dove

Love can be your enemy
Or an angel from above
A blackened beast that you can't see
Or a soaring snow white dove

My time's born at sunrise
My shadows become shade
I will shine forever
Even though the dark comes to take me away