Something strange was in the air when I woke up last night. A special formed light and a far away voice was talking to me: Give me your love Try to believe in feelings. Give me your love Try to believe in me. Give me your love Time has a special value A moment of love that's eternity. Give me your love You'll find a door of glass and light You'll open it You'll leave the night You'll never feel alone. Give me your love That's the sign for you to rise Into a new dimension of life Give me your love. The woice strange and light faded away when dawn came And left me behind with these words in the air: Give me your love You'll find a door of glass and light