Skip the Youth

Frightened Rabbit

And I've been digging that hole tonight On my knees beneath the moon All I need is a place to lie Guess a grave will have to do Won't you give me two minutes please Just let me cover my eyes

All the hammer and scrape Has been chipping away At the lustre of life

So I will but I am so tired If I can shake myself I can dance with you

Though my body is far from old I'm bound to useless youth

And I can't fake a fist to throw Through the crust of the earth If you find me don't wake me I can't be shaken awake If you don't stare at the dark You can never feel bleak Life starts to lose its taste

So I will but I am so tired

If I can shake myself I can dance with you

I hear drums The worn out beat of a tired heart You are young If this is the prime of life I wish I could skip the blasted youth

Skip the youth

It's aging me too much
