

Calm Before the Storm

Frozen Dawn

I feel the cold winds
Heading from the north
Electricity
Filling up the air

The gods of our ancestors
Shall take vengeance
The sky gets clouded
As daylight fades away

There's something pending in the sky

Lightning coats the sky
The storms is unleashed
Thunder scatters
Across the land

This is the god's Manifestation

My voidness
Becomes perspicuous
Being at mercy
Of mother north

The sun breaks through the ceiling
Built on the cloudy sky
The world seems once again
Purified from burdens

And when I roam the landscape
My glance scours the beauty
That this destructive force
Revived so enviably
