We always thought that there're two sites
Black and white from which we chose
Never have thought that this
Might not be the whole truth
There's no good god, no evil devil
Just one god who is all
No fallen angel ruling hell
There is just one entity

Let's forget about black and white
About the devil who is to blame
In the end it is our decision
We can use our free will without shame

So what shall I believe?
Shall I obey or shall I go?
Is there no black, is there no white?
Only grey with no sites
And in the end it will not matter
How much white you add to grey
It always was and will be grey
No separate sites on which you could stay

Let's forget about black and white
About the devil who is to blame
In the end it is our decision
We can use our free will without shame
