Living in New Orleans, she came in from Texas Every local show I put her name on the guest list But I don't never see her I've came to expect this She would rather chill at the crib watching Netflix Um, not trying to sound pretentious But most girls would say she sounds senseless I guess cause I don't drive in a Lexus You prefer the guy who would buy you a necklace Take you out to dinner, not hungover breakfast Oh, I get this, it would all sound senseless If you told your mom you're in love with a rapper Live your own life, why the fuck should it matter? But, she's right it won't work So stick to your ivy league premed jerk Cause that's what you're looking for Now I took it for Shoulda never went and grabbed for the cookie jar

I really want to go out
I really want to go outside and stop to see your day
You really want to hole up
You really want to stay inside and sleep the light away

I twenty-one, about to be twenty-two

Not trying to turn thirty regretting what I didn't do When I was coming with this music and still in school Cause honestly I'm living my dream and I've been a fool So, whether or not you would like to partake At least give it just one night for our sake I'm part Johnny Cash, part Lennon, and part Drake I'll sing a love song, but I'll leave you a heartache Yeah, these other girls never seem to mind Like, have you seen the line? I'm just joking Honestly I wrote this with a queen in mind The type of girl I very rarely ever seem to find Yeah, but, then again I could be wrong And you don't listen to me so, you'll never hear this song We're two opposites, we could never get along You sleep until the morning and I party 'till it's dawn

I really want to go out
I really want to go outside and stop to see your day
You really want to hole up
You really want to stay inside and sleep the light away
Know what's good
Exactly cause I have been there before
