

Golden Years

Galloglass

There he sits on his throne
With burning eyes and cloven hooves
The fallen one, now alone
So far away, where his spirit moves

It's such a long time ago
Since the day you created man
What a circus what a show
That was the day the horror began

So many years have gone
Bring back the times
So many things have been done
Let me live in the good old days
Since the good old days
So many years have gone
Bring back the times
So many things have been done
Let me live in the golden years
Since the good old days

Once I was the only bad guy
But now there are billions of them
I think it's time to say goodbye
I'm just a loser compared to many

So many years have gone
Bring back the times
So many things have been done
Let me live in the good old days
Since the good old days
So many years have gone
Bring back the times
So many things have been done
Let me live in the golden years
Since the good old days

So many years have gone
Bring back the times
So many things have been done
Let me live in the good old days
Since the good old days
So many years have gone
Bring back the times
So many things have been done
Let me live in the golden years
Since the good old days
