

Where Did We Go Wrong?

Gary Moore

Ever since it all began,
A woman and an only man.
What happened to the world in which we're living?
We take, when all this time we could be giving.
And I ask myself each day,
Where did we go wrong?
And I wonder when I pray,
Where did we go wrong?

Ever since it all began,
One woman and a lonely man.
I worry for the world in which we're living.
We take, when all this time we could be giving.
And I ask myself each day,
Where did we go wrong?
And I wonder when I pray,
Where did we go wrong?

With every turn our world is growing older.
But does it mean our hearts are turning colder?
With every teardrop falls a shining star.
It seems so wrong, but now we've come so far.

After all is said and done,
I know I'm not the only one
Who worries for this world in which we're living,
Who cares about the love we should be giving.
And I ask myself each day,
Where did we go wrong?
And I wonder when I pray,
Where did we go wrong?
