Something calls me From a dark place And so I pray every night Something knows me It whispers my name And I'm losing my faith I can feel it breathing But it feels like something dead and cold I can feel it waiting But it waits for something in my soul Sometimes I call out for you, and sometimes I'm afraid So I beg God For salvation, for an angel Every night And I ask God Can He forgive me? And I want to believe I think I hear it laughing But it sounds like my voice lost and old I think it showed me Heaven And now I know why I'm scared to die Am I a fool in the dark, I don't know Am I the ghost in my dreams, I don't know Am I a shadow of life, I don't know Am I afraid of the truth, I don't know Sometimes I call out for you, and sometimes I'm afraid So I ask for

One small mercy?
But it whispers 'Who are you?'

So I ask God
If He can save me?

He says 'It's all too dark'
