

Termite Thermometer

Gas Huffer

Magneto driven, can't you see
I've got need for batteries
Nanometers in width and length,
Tiny but with super strength
Swallow me cloaked in a pill,
I'll find the place where you are I'll
Cancer killing microbot,
I wiggle in and eat the rot

This science, heaven sent,
Will set a precedent
I'm getting deeper, now
You won't know where I went

Hurtling past cells and molecules
The platelets sparkling like jewels
Before my tools

Miniscule and maximized,
Invisible to human eyes
Smuggling little flecks of hope,
I'm blowing up your microscope

Termite thermometer,
Check out the monitor,
If you look closely, now
You might just see my blur
