

Some Misunderstanding

Gene Clark

There's been some misunderstanding
And I'd like to make it right
Both of us need inspiration
And the timing must be right

We all have souls yet nobody knows
Just how much it takes to fly

But I see my life before me
And I'd like to make a try
Maybe someone knows what fate is
Maybe someone knows just why

All I know is it's all related
Maybe someone can explain time

But I know if you sell your soul to brighten your role
You might be disappointed in the lights
We all need a fix at a time like this
But, doesn't it feel good to stay alive?

Now I see that in my visions
That my eyes are seeing twice
Once for every expectation
And once for what I realize

But I know if you sell your soul to brighten your role
You might be disappointed in the lights
We all need a fix at a time like this
But, doesn't it feel good to stay alive?
