

Beautiful

Gene Simmons

Spent your money on silicone, Honey

You're somebody beautiful, look at yourself
You're somebody beautiful, like nobody else

Hey, put on those fake eyelashes
Wax away the old mustache
You're six foot four in six-inch heels
A Cupid tattoo behind your ear
You're an ingenue in a full-length mirror
A tight black dress, all the right moves
From your long blonde tresses to your sequined shoes

You're somebody beautiful, look at yourself
You're somebody beautiful
You're somebody beautiful, like nobody else
You're somebody beautiful
You're somebody beautiful, look at yourself
You're somebody beautiful
You're somebody beautiful

Downtown on Saturday night
They happen to catch you in the light
You'd like to dance but they want you to fight
They could never understand what it's like
To reach the age of twenty three
Knowing what you are, you're not supposed to be
Spent your money on silicone, Honey
Made up your mind for the very first time

You're somebody beautiful, look at yourself
You're somebody beautiful
You're somebody beautiful, like nobody else

Like a Hollywood legend or a rock 'n roll star
What you are is what you are Standing there naked in the mirror's embrace, you say
This is my body, this is my face

Spent your money on silicone, Honey

You're somebody beautiful, look at yourself
You're somebody beautiful
You're somebody beautiful, like nobody else
You're somebody beautiful
You're somebody beautiful, look at yourself
You're somebody beautiful
You're somebody beautiful